

After testing the three browsers with my website, I found that the way the header adjusted itself was not cohesive in Chrome but looked great on Firefox and Safari. In the screenshots it shows that the header and footer don't fully extend like the other two. I also noticed that the h2s seemed to look just a tad bit nicer in Safari in my opinion. But overall, it was really similar when it came to layout and color especially!